VOL. XXII. PORTLAND, OREGON: FRIDAY, SEPTEMBER 7, 1883. NO. 7280

GENERAL NEWS.

Villard Assists in Laying the Corner Stone of Dakota's Capitol.

LARGE LABOR DEMONSTRATION AT NEW YORK

Shocks of Earthquake in California—Death of a Liberal Financier—Opening of the Chicago Exposition.

[The wires to California have been working very poorly since yesterday afternoon, and few press dispatches were received.]

Arthur at Chicago.

CHICAGO, Sept. 5.—President Arthur passed the forenoon quietly at his hotel, receiving a few calls. At 12:30, accompanied by several members of the reception committee, he appeared at the chamber of commerce, where he met with a splendid ovation. Fully 4000 were on the floor and in the galleries, and the appearance of Mr. Arthur was the signal for continuous cheering, lasting several minutes. He was introduced by Vice President French as the chief magistrate of the union, enjoying the greatest prosperity ever known in the history of the world. President Arthur spoke as follows: "Gentlemen, I thank you for the warmth of this greeting. I am glad to have the opportunity of meeting so many of the representative business men in this magnificent city. I shall always recall with pleasure the warmth and cordiality with which I have been welcomed, and leave you with my best wishes for your future prosperity and welfare."

Secretary Lincoln said he had been endeavoring for two years to convince the president that Chicago was the center of the nation, but his magnificent reception to-day would prove an argument he could not withstand. At 1 o'clock the president held a reception at the Union League club, and at 2 o'clock sat down to dinner at the Calumet club, tendered by the Illinois Commandery of the Loyal Legion.

"Rex" Receives Royal Honors at Cincinnati.

CINCINNATI, Sept. 5.—The arrival of Rex and the reception of Cincinnatians was an imposing spectacle. A flotilla of ten steamers, all decorated with flags, took place at 1 P. M. Their appearance was greeted by the blowing of whistles and ringing of bells by all the river craft as well as factories along the shore. The salutes of artillery and responsive screams of the flotilla's whistles created the wildest enthusiasm among the crowd of people along the shore. The royal procession moved as soon as possible after the landing to Exposition hall where Rex was duly welcomed.

Pacific Coast Well Represented.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—At the Chicago exposition, which opens to-night the process of reducing gold, silver and copper ores which will be shown in operation at the smelting works will be another interesting feature. The California Agricultural association will exhibit a collection of California fruits, illustrating the wonders, variety and magnificence of the fruit products of the southern Pacific coast. A large collection of minerals will be shown from exhibitors of the northwest. The fish commission will make a big display of the products of western fisheries.

Great Sale of Blankets.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—[Special.]—The biggest peremptory trade-sale of blankets ever known in this country took place and was finished to-day by Wilmerding, Hoguet & Co. at the order of Mitchell & Co. The sale lasted six hours. There was a very large attendance of buyers present. The prices, although low, equaled the expected average. California houses represented were Murphy, Grant & Co., Weil Bros., Strauss & Co., Hachman & Co., Newstadter Bros. and Hass Bros. & Co. The sale will not affect prices, as there are few of those goods in market.

K. of P.

OMAHA, Neb., Sept. 5.—The grand lodge Knights of Pythias of Nebraska, elected officers this morning for the ensuing year. E. S. Oppenheimer, of Nebraska City, was elected past grand master, and J. G. [illegible] was elected chancellor commander, [illegible] Morrison grand prelate, J. S. [illegible] supreme representative. The grand lodge was largely attended. The order in Nebraska is in a flourishing condition. This afternoon the knights gave a street parade, and this evening officers were installed.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—The Evening Post says: In regard to the reported decision of the supreme court of Massachusetts in favor of the Credit Mobilier Company and against the Union Pacific Railway company on the note for $2,000,000, it is stated by an officer of the Union Pacific that their company owns [illegible] of the stock of the Credit Mobilier, and that even if the report should prove correct, it could not cause a greater loss than $500,000 to the Union Pacific Company.

Labor Demonstration in New York City.

NEW YORK, Sept. 6.—A parade of labor organizations of New York, Brooklyn, Jersey City and adjacent cities came off here yesterday. About 20,000 men were in line, representing almost every branch of labor. Crowds gathered along the route of procession, which was reviewed by prominent labor agitators. After the procession numbers went to a park on the outskirts of the city, where games and other amusements were engaged in.

Train Disaster.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Sept. 6.—Two empty coal trains collided this morning near here. Several cars were piled up in great confusion and fifteen were thrown into a pond. The blockade caused delay to all trains. The accident was due to the neglect of a trainman who fell asleep. Twelve cars were totally demolished. The brakeman and conductor were injured.

Shocks of Earthquake.

WILMINGTON, Sept. 5.—Quite a sharp earthquake shock was felt here this morning at twenty minutes [illegible] o'clock, local time, lasting ten seconds. The vibrations were from northeast to southwest.

SANTA BARBARA, Sept. 5.—A very distinct shock of earthquake was felt here this morning at 4:15, lasting twenty seconds. The vibrations were north and south.

Beer on Sunday.

ST. LOUIS, Sept. 6.—Whisky wins in the court of criminal correction to-day in St. Louis. Over eight hundred cases against saloon keepers for selling beer on Sunday were noted passed on the suggestion of the court. This ends for the present the fight against the saloon keepers, and is a triumph for [illegible].

In Fears of Cholera.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 6.—Orders have been issued from the office of the surgeon general of the Marine Hospital service to the board of health at Pensacola, ordering discontinuance of house to house inspection at that place.

Greenback Nominations.

SYRACUSE, Sept. 5.—In the greenback state convention George O. Jones of Albany was nominated for secretary of state, but declined. Rev. Thos. K. Beecher was then nominated by acclamation.

Nutt's Trial Postponed.

UNIONTOWN, Pa., Sept. 6.—On petition of his defense, Nutt's trial was postponed until the December term.

FRANCE.

MARQUIS TSENG WILL BE ASKED TO EXPLAIN.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The French cabinet has decided that on his arrival in Paris Marquis Tseng, Chinese minister, will be asked to explain the reason for the movement of Chinese troops to the Tonquin frontier. The ministry is seriously weighing the chances of war with China which even now is considered by no means impossible. Admiral Peyron, minister of marine, remains in Paris to superintend the dispatch of reinforcements to the French contingent in Tonquin.

STILL WITHOUT OFFICIAL INFORMATION.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—The Chinese legation are still without any official information in regard to the reported crossing of Chinese troops on the frontier. It is admitted, however, by members of the embassy that if the French Asiatic squadron has been charged with the duty of notifying China of the signing of the treaty, the situation might be greatly complicated thereby.

WAR ALMOST CERTAIN.

LONDON, Sept. 6.—The Standard's Hongkong special says that the report of the crossing of the Tonquin frontier by Chinese troops is unconfirmed. War, however, is considered at Hongkong certain to ensue unless the French government fully recognizes the supremacy of China.

FREE TRADE WANTED.

PARIS, Sept. 6.—At a banquet given United States Minister Morton and Sergeant yesterday several speakers expressed the wish that the United States should adopt the principles of free trade, and conclude a treaty of commerce with France on that basis.

ENGLAND.

RENEWED FENIAN ACTIVITY.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—The police are in possession of facts which indicate a renewal of Fenian activity in London. A noted rendezvous of prominent Irish [illegible] here is again placed under strict police surveillance.

DEATH OF AN ELECTRICIAN.

LONDON, Sept. 5.—Prof. Varley, electrician to the [illegible] International Telegraph, which laid the first telegraph cable across the Atlantic ocean, is dead.

NOTABLE DEAD.

DEATH OF A LIBERAL FINANCIER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—[Special.]—Andrew Varick Stout, long prominent as a bank president and liberal citizen of large benevolence, died this morning at his country house at Bernardsville, N. J. He was actively interested in many financial enterprises and institutions and was a director of the [illegible] Fire Insurance Company, New York Mutual, the American Bank Note Company, New York and Brooklyn Ferry Company and a loan and improvement company. When Fernando Wood was mayor Stout was city chamberlain and during the [illegible] at that time in regard to the police force supplied the pay of the police from his own pocket. He was always liberal in giving from his large store of wealth toward the aid of charitable and religious objects. A few years ago he made a gift of $100,000 to the Drew theological seminary and an equal amount to the Wesleyan university at Middletown, N. Y.

RAILROAD RUMBLINGS.

CREDIT MOBILIER DECISION.

BOSTON, Sept. 5.—In the supreme court to-day a decision rendered in the suit of the Union Pacific Railroad Company vs. the Credit Mobilier of America growing out of the building of the road on [illegible] Mobilier. A full bench decided that there was [illegible], and enter judgment against the rail[illegible]

THE VILLARD PARTY.

Mr. Villard Assists in Laying the Corner Stone of Dakota's Capitol Building.

BISMARCK, D. T., Sept. 6.—The occupants of seven coaches of Villard's train at 9 o'clock marched to the capitol grounds, where the ceremony of laying the corner stone of Dakota's capitol was announced to take place. At an early hour the streets were already filled with decorated carriages and wagons, in which were the beauty of the city and prairies, numbering not less than 300. The Villard party was taken possession of and escorted to the grounds where no time was lost in preliminaries. Governor Ordway, in addressing President Villard and his guests, said that the agreeable duty devolved upon him as executive of the Dakota to welcome them to Bismarck, the capital of Dakota, the largest and most prosperous territory in the Union. He said all of Dakota and all true Dakotans recognize in you and your company workers and benefactors, in opening up the way that has enabled them to transform the unbroken prairies into productive farms and busy marts of trade. For more than twenty years the capitol remained at Yankton, in the extreme southwestern portion of the territory, within sight of Nebraska and within an hour's ride of the western boundary line of Iowa and Minnesota. The refusal of the last congress to divide or admit Dakota compelled the legislative assembly and executive to meet the requirements which a population of half a million people would impose upon them, and provision was therefore made for the erection and completion of ten penal, charitable and educational institutions so located that every portion of this vast territory covering 150,000 square miles would receive the benefit of these absolutely necessary institutions. The promised conditions having been completed the capital commission, on the second day of June, 1883, located permanently the seat of government of the territory of Dakota upon the commanding site where we now stand. Work was commenced in August, 1883, and has progressed without intermission, until we are now prepared to lay the corner stone of the building, which we trust will remain a monument to the style of architecture and of the wisdom, fidelity and economy of those who projected it. In the name, therefore, of the citizens of Bismarck, and of the people of the territory of Dakota, who are to be the recipients of this imposing temple devoted to legislation, I have now the honor to invite you, President Villard, and you, Jay Cooke, whom we all recognize as the Alpha and Omega of a great national enterprise, on the completion of which you are now on your way to celebrate, to assist in placing the corner stone of the capitol of Dakota.

MR. VILLARD'S RESPONSE.

Mr. Villard responded as follows: "The fortunes of the corporations over which I have the honor to preside are so absolutely identified with the prosperity of Dakota that I need to feel interested in every step in her progress. It was a source of no ordinary satisfaction to be permitted to conduct the extraordinary host that accompanies me on this march across the continent, over the rolling prairies of your territory. My guests were informed in advance that they would see wonderful sights along our line of progress through the territory, but I believe I reflect the sentiments of them all when I say that what they have seen has far exceeded their expectations. They share with me the conviction that a great and immeasurable future lies before this territory, and they join with me in sincere wishes for its welfare. We are all glad to participate in this auspicious event, and I feel personally and particularly honored that it is my good fortune to be permitted to assist in laying this corner stone. Will you, Mr. Governor, express to the citizens of Bismarck, and to the people of Dakota our heartfelt thanks for the generous, unstinted hospitality that we have received since we entered the territory. Allow me to add one more word on behalf of the representatives of my native land. They I am assured feel particularly proud to be able to assist at this ceremony in the town that bears the name of the greatest living German statesman, and I am sure I feel particular pride in being permitted to have given them the opportunity. Governor Ordway, say to the architect, 'Is the stone properly squared and laid?'"

The architect: "It is."

Then, said Mr. Villard: "Now that the stone is well and truly laid, may I ask you all to join in with me in prayer that this edifice may be successfully reared and planned, that it may soon be the capitol of a sovereign state, that it may be the seat of a good and honest government, that it may be the seat of wise legislation, of all the blessings of justice and liberty that are the birthright of American freemen." [Loud applause.]

TESTIMONIAL TO PRINCE BISMARCK.

Governor Ordway next presented the German minister, Baron Eisendecker, with an engrossed copy of the resolutions of the citizens of Bismarck in honor of Germany's chancellor, after whom the city is named.

Baron Eisendecker said: "Mr. Governor, I accept this token of esteem to a foreign chancellor with deep gratitude. I am glad to be here myself the representative of the German empire to take from your hands this testimony. I shall not fail to forward it to Prince Bismarck, and I can assure you that he will esteem it and feel highly honored that you have thought on this memorable occasion of the prince whose name your capital bears. I can only add that I wish to the city of Bismarck, capital of your territory, that it will make its name sound in your land as highly as the name of its godfather sounds in our land." [Cheers.]

GENERAL GRANT AND OTHERS.

Hon. Wm. Evarts was introduced and spoke briefly.

There were calls for General Grant, and that distinguished guest stepped to the front and said: "Ladies and gentlemen: It is with some reluctance that I respond to your kind request, as you are aware from your reading, when I get to talking before a crowd I scarcely know when to quit. [Laughter.] I am sure were I to stop to tell you of my feelings and the sights I have seen the train would not get off on time. I never set a foot in Dakota till yesterday. I had heard much of your country, but I was not prepared to see what my own eyes have witnessed. With Mr. Evarts I predict for you a prosperous future. In a few years you will rank far above the best of the states."

Remarks were made by Hon. Carl Schurz, who was warmly received, Messrs. Billings, Carter, Harrison and Secretary Teller.

Mr. Villard then introduced Sitting Bull, whose remarks were translated to the assembled thousands by a government interpreter.

With a few more words Mr. Villard closed the ceremonies and he and his guests departed.

The Villard train crossed the river to Mandan, where another handsome welcome was extended. When the box was ready to be placed in its receptacle, Governor Ordway invited those present to deposit anything they wished in the box. Mrs. Barclay put in a small sheaf of oats and many gentlemen deposited cards. Mr. Evarts remarked, "This is leaving our cards to posterity," whereat those who surrounded the witty statesman laughed, which good humor was further heightened when Mr. Evarts said to a German guest who asked him to put his card with his own in the box, "Ah, they will know that we called together."

FOREIGN NEWS.

THE CALAMITY IN THE DUTCH EAST INDIES.

THE HAGUE, Sept. 4.—The government of the Dutch East Indies telegraphs that the town of Telok Betong is probably totally destroyed by the recent volcanic eruption. The district in which that town is situated is entirely inaccessible, as all roads are obliterated. There is nothing from Tjiringin, in the southern coast of Sumatra. Some of the light-houses in the straits are standing, but the lights are extinct. The report of the destruction of Tjiringin by a tidal wave and drowning of 10,000 people there is confirmed.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Western Oregon.

Citizens of Yamhill county are taking steps looking to the organization of a county fair association.

On Sunday last the large barn and contents belonging to A. J. Baker, of Yamhill county, were totally consumed by fire. Loss about $3000, no insurance.

On Thursday last Joe Stewart and a young man named McDonald who has been at work threshing near Sheridan, Yamhill county, got into a difficulty and Stewart stabbed McDonald in the left breast, the knife blade penetrating one lung. McDonald is in a very critical condition.

Mrs. Annie E. Lawrence, of Linn county, died at her home on Wednesday the 5th inst., of heart disease. She was a woman of refinement and intelligence, and her death is mourned by a wide circle of friends. The funeral services were conducted by the same minister who performed the marriage ceremony for the deceased thirteen years ago.

GOULD UPON THE STAND.

His Testimony Before the Senate Sub-Committee on Labor and Capital.

HE REHEARSES THE HISTORY OF HIS LIFE

If the People Think Western Union Earns Too Much Let Them Buy the Stock—Government has no Right to Interfere.

NEW YORK, Sept. 5.—Senators Blair and Call were waiting patiently for Jay Gould to appear before them this morning to testify as to the relations between capital and labor. A large audience was in attendance. As Gould delayed appearance the committee heard statements from George W. Weston, a lawyer of this city, who appeared in opposition to the theories of Henry George and Moody. Just as the witness was beginning testimony Gould entered. Weston merely stated that the tendency to monopolize land was not so great now as it was 100 years ago in this country.

Gould then took the stand. On being sworn Senator Blair requested him to give the history of his early life and first business adventures and then to go on and give the story of his progress to his present condition. Gould seemed somewhat staggered at this request, but turning with a smile toward the reporters' table began in a low voice: "I was born at Roxbury, Delaware county, this state, May 27, 1836. My parents had a small farm and kept twenty cows, which I assisted in tending. I attended a school about fifteen miles distant, and when I was about 14 years old obtained a situation in a store in a neighboring village. I was much interested in mathematics, and used to get up at 3 o'clock in the morning to study to 6, when the store was opened. I remained in this store for two years, when I made the acquaintance of a surveyor who was making a survey in Ulster county. He took me into his service at a salary of $20 per month. I learned my employer's credit was not very good and that I was to obtain no money for my work until the map was complete, so I made sun dials for farmers at $1 apiece, to pay my running expenses. I made surveys afterwards of Delaware and Albany counties, and made on these contracts about $5000. I then went into the tanning business. The first railroad with which I had any connection was what is now a portion of the Rensselaer and Saratoga, of which I was superintendent. During the panic of 1859 stock went down very low and I was able to buy in a large amount of stock which afterwards became valuable and made me a handsome profit."

HIS CONNECTION WITH THE UNION PACIFIC.

The next road in which Gould said he interested himself was the Cleveland and Pittsburg, which he afterward leased to the Pennsylvania road. Gould then rehearsed his connection with the Union Pacific railroad. As he had interested himself in it, and stock was falling he made up his mind to carry it through at any cost. It was on the point of being placed in the hands of a receiver. Afterward, when the road became a paying one and dividends were declared regularly, there was a great cry in the public that it was Jay Gould's road, as if that was a dangerous thing. He said however that he was engaged in selling out his stock which was so in into the hands of more than 5000 investors, representing the earnings of many widows and orphans. This ended his connection with the Union Pacific, and the stock is now higher than when he sold it. His next venture was in building Gould's railroad system in the south and west. His earnings for the past month were $80,000. In building up this system the southwest has been opened up and the country thrown open to civilization. Mr. Gould stated that he was a director in the Chicago and Northwestern, Chicago and Rock Island, Delaware, Lackawanna and Western, New York and New England and several other roads.

Incidental to his railroad interests he had become largely interested in the telegraph business. This was on account of the intimate connection between the two industries. He was instrumental in starting the American line to make a competing line with the Western Union. He found that it would be impossible to accomplish this on account of the extent of the latter's connections. He then turned his attention to getting control of the Western Union by buying stock when it was low. Finding it a paying investment he had been constantly increasing his interest. His object in acquiring control of the Western Union was to make his friend General Eckert the manager, as he had great confidence in his business abilities. The railroad facilities which are now acquired by the Western Union are invaluable and it is impossible to estimate their value.

A POSTAL TELEGRAPH WILL FAIL.

"Can you give us your opinion as to the practicability of a government telegraph which would take the place of the present system?"

Mr. Gould: "I think the institutions of this country are opposed to any such thing as that. The telegraphic business, more than any other requires to be managed by experts, and the dividends of the Western Union are obtained because it does its business well. Under a government system the whole management of these interests would be subject to change by the particular political party in power."

Mr. Gould also thought that the mail service would be better accomplished by private enterprise than by the government. He would not object to the government taking hold of the telegraph system of the Western Union if it would pay for it what it was worth, but in his opinion it would not be a success. Uniform tariff could be secured under private enterprise as well as under government supervision, and the Western Union policy tended to accomplish this. In New York there are no uniform systems of rates. There could be no lasting competition against the Western Union on account of its great facilities. When the other powerful rivals [illegible] the rates were not reduced because the competition was obliged to charge the same rates as the Western Union in order to live. Mr. Gould said that this had been his experience, and if any one thought he could do better than himself he was certainly at liberty to try. The value of stock in a corporation depended upon its earning power. There might be water in the Western Union, but the same could be said of all kinds of property which had increased in value. He thought the government had the right to fix the limit beyond which the profit of a company could go so long as the rates were not unreasonable, but it had no right under republican institutions to take away private property from its citizens without just compensation.

HE JUDGES VALUES ON A BROAD BASIS.

Senator Blair inquired whether he would give an approximate estimate of the value of the Western Union Company.

Mr. Gould replied that this would be impossible. He was not in a position to give such an estimate. He did not trouble himself with details but judged of the value of property on a broader basis—that being its earning power. The value of franchises purchased by the company at present could not be estimated by any known means. Contracts with railroads had been made under varying circumstances. The growth of the telegraph system represented the growth of the country and is progressing more rapidly than most people imagined. He thought 7 per cent was a fair estimate of the earning power of the Western Union. If the people thought they were getting too much they could buy the stock. The stock of all safe paying enterprises was being distributed all over the country. This class of investors held about $60,000,000 of the Western Union stock which is continually coming on the market. Within two years, Mr. Gould thought the remaining shares now upon the market would be absorbed by investors. He was glad that this was so for it indicated a proper condition of affairs. He did not think there was as much water in the stock of the Western Union as in that of many other companies. The value of Western Union was very nearly equal to its capitalization. A railroad like the New York Central probably could not be duplicated for its present capitalization.

"Do you think that New York city cost more than it would sell for?" asked Senator Blair.

"I don't think an opinion on that subject would be very valuable," replied Mr. Gould. "I very [illegible] don't think I would care to buy New York, even if I could get plenty of corner lots."

HE DOES NOT BELIEVE IN GOVERNMENT INTERFERENCE.

Mr. Gould stated that he did not think it was advisable for a company to get exclusive privileges, for in that case another could be constructed alongside if a sufficient number of wise men or fools could be found who would put their money into the enterprise. Eventually however, the stronger road would always swallow the weaker. In all the lines controlled by him in the west the rates for fares and freights were regulated by state statutes. In many cases however [illegible] reduced the rates and charges below the limits made by law.

Mr. Gould declined to specify the railroads where the capitalization was greatly in excess of the cost of construction and the real value. He did not believe in government interference, as rates would always be regulated by competition.

The system of pooling had undoubtedly saved a great many corporations from being injured seriously. Its effects were merely to protect roads entering into the pool from ruinous competition. A pool could not effect rates very materially on account of the various elements which entered into the system. There were outlets by the way of the Mississippi river, the canals and the lake routes, and rates could not be maintained beyond certain points. Speculation to keep up prices will always fail.

Mr. Gould said he was not familiar with the methods of speculators in forming pools, [illegible] though there was nothing unfair in such speculations. A transaction represented a sale and a delivery and the [illegible] in the hands of the parties themselves.

The Western Union Company, he thought, paid more attention to its employes than any other company with which he was connected. The recent strike in his opinion, was the result of a feeling of dissatisfaction on the part of the poorer class of employes. The better class of workmen as a general rule did not care so much how many hours they worked. They were continually seeking higher positions in the ranks. It was a fact that the Western Union paid its employes a better wage than any other company. [illegible] would bring about satisfactory adjustments.

"Do you think that labor gets its fair share of the wealth which is the product of all capital?" asked Senator Blair.

"I do," replied Mr. Gould. "The returns for capital in this country are continually growing less. The returns to [illegible] labor [illegible]."

"Oh yes," exclaimed a southern democrat, "since you republicans are pleasing, first you [illegible] the negro, and then you pass civil service laws to make education the basis of appointment [illegible] what you want the blacks to have all [illegible], but it won't work. We whites will [illegible] by learning to read."

"How pleasant is Saturday night when we've tried all the week to be good [illegible]. Suppose he lets up on trying when Saturday night comes."

MORE OF HUNTINGTON'S LETTER.

How he has Changed since '78, and Now Takes the Other Side of the Fence.

CHICAGO, Sept. 6.—The Tribune revives the controversy over the Texas Pacific land grants. Its Washington correspondent telegraphs as follows: The index to the interior department showed that in 1878 C. P. Huntington of the Central Pacific filed a letter sharply attacking the Texas Pacific grant, but the letter could not be found in the files. It has now been found. It had been mislaid and could not be found until the return of the file clerk. The text of the letter follows. It will be seen that in February, 1878, Huntington describes the Texas Pacific road as having no more substantial existence than could come from driving a line of pegs and scratching up a furrow of sand, yet in 1883 the Southern Pacific Company claims that the Texas Pacific road, although still a line of pegs and a furrow in the sand, earned or was entitled to 15,000,000 of acres, of which by assignment the Southern Pacific is now the rightful owner. The following letter is addressed by Mr. Huntington to Carl Schurz, then secretary of the interior. Huntington wrote in the capacity of agent and attorney of the Southern Pacific Railroad Company. The letter has special reference to one written by Vice President Brown of the Texas Pacific, in which the latter seeks to prevent the Southern Pacific from bridging the Colorado river and entering upon the territory of Arizona. Huntington says whatever claims the Texas Pacific had have lapsed, and the letter continues: The Southern Pacific has its road actually in operation to Fort Yuma and by a continuous line of nearly 700 miles connects with the road of another company, so as to afford direct and unbroken communication with San Francisco and an existing net work of railroads all over the country.

EXTRACTS FROM THE LETTER.

The Texas Pacific had no road nor made a pretense of any nearer than eastern Texas, more than 1,000 miles away. Moreover at the very moment when this letter purports to have been written by Vice President Brown his company was not constructing any road but had suspended its construction and was instead declaring before congress its inability to continue construction unless aided further by indorsement of the government upon its fifty year gold bonds. With what show of justice I ask, can it set up a claim to the exclusive right to cross the Colorado river by a bridge when it has no road nearer than 1200 miles, as against the California corporation with its road and locomotives on the spot. The Texas company seems to have underrated the intelligence and determination of the California company by supposing that all that was necessary to bring its tracklayers to a halt could be done by driving a line of pegs and scratching up a furrow of sand at what it was pleased to designate as the point of junction, and they seem to have overrated their own powers to make the public and executive departments believe that they had more right to a reservation of lands and to bridge the river with not a rail, or a locomotive within 1200 miles than we have with our continuous road and our trains at one end of the bridge.

LONDON LETTERS.

English Politics—The Shapira Forgeries—Plotting Powers—Etc.

NEW YORK, Sept. 2.—A Sun London cable of the 1st says: English politics are at a low ebb but the conservatives are entering upon what promises to be a very active interparliamentary campaign in which Lord Randolph Churchill will shortly take the lead. In Ireland Mr. Parnell has opened his campaign in a manner which the tory journals view with unconcealed displeasure and the liberals with warm approval. Nothing could have been more moderate or temperate than his speech at Dublin on Tuesday. The tory enemies of home rule had set their hearts and based their plans upon the inauguration of a campaign of bitterness and violence, but Parnell's advice to his party is that it should be prepared to accept the measure of home rule which Gladstone will endeavor at the next session to grant. It has been intimated that a satisfactory plan of local self government would be introduced and he showed that the Irish party had secured a fair share of beneficial legislation at the session of parliament just closed. It is significant, however, of the state of public feeling on the subject that Gladstone's early resignation is looked for. The government is apprehensive on this point and that the Irish temper will not readily adapt itself to a policy of conciliation and that the fact that an important part of the English press praises and approves Parnell's course will cause him to be looked upon with suspicion and lead his followers to the aggressor and [illegible] in rivalry with Parnell.

The breach between the governments of France and [illegible] with bitterness. The English government [illegible]. The diplomatic [illegible] Denmark, Sweden and Turkey in opposition to the Austro-German league continue. The visit of the czar and czarina to Copenhagen will bring together the prince and princess of Wales, the king of Greece and the king of Sweden as a royal family party, but the meeting is intended as a counter demonstration to the gathering of princes around the emperor of Germany at the autumn maneuvers. It is reported that the Prince of Wales favors an Anglo-Russian alliance. Public feeling in Germany is further exasperated against France by complaints of ill treatment of German residents in Paris. An incident occurred on Wednesday in the gardens of the Tuileries at a circus the owner of which, Herr Opitz, was uniformed as an old officer of Uhlans, who had served against France. The crowd mobbed Opitz and threatened to destroy the circus which was closed by the police. Opitz appealed to the German embassy who warned the French foreign office that such demonstrations and attacks on German subjects produce a strong irritation in Germany.

THE SHAPIRA FORGERIES.

The Deuteronomy manuscripts have been officially declared to be forgeries and Dr. Ginsberg has made a very learned and interesting exposure of them, showing that they must have been concocted by a person who had learned Hebrew in Northern Europe, and who in dictating it to his Asiatic accomplice so pronounced some words as to create telltale phonetic errors in the Moabitic text. Certain learned Romans who were in ambush waiting to see what the museum authorities might do now come forward and declare that the manuscript was offered to them long ago and they declined it as a forgery. They also discuss Mr. Shapira in a way which has the effect of sending that learned gentleman back to Jerusalem without a rag of character left.

SHIFTING THE RESPONSIBILITY.

Minister Waddington has left England and will be absent some months, showing that at the same time difficulties between the English and French governments have been smoothed over. The apprehension caused on the continent by the article in Prince Bismarck's organ has subsided now that it appears the [illegible] meant to approve the commercial treaty with Spain. The article in question was not, it appears, dictated by Bismarck, but was written in Paris by Prince Hohenlohe, who had been coquetting ineffectually with Jules Ferry about the [illegible] of the French papers.

FRANCE AND CHINA.

An opinion still prevails of the improbability of China and France avoiding a conflict. Both powers desire to avoid a conflict, but the [illegible] tactics of the Chinese in Tonquin will probably force France into open hostility, and if it is true that the French admiral's demonstration [illegible] to bully China instant war will follow.

Why People Use Medicine.

It is to be feared that to most people medicine is but an unexplored science, the learned art but is little more than the commonplace administration of physic. They cannot understand medicine without drugs, and its virtue and power are popularly measured by the violence of its operations. It very [illegible] in ordinary parlance is [illegible] physic. Take from it the pills and potions, and you take away its whole art and mystery. They do not believe in a scheme of treatment, however [illegible] laid and skillful, which does not contain a certain statutory dose. So that as a rule medical men are practically compelled to give their patients a visible object [illegible] in some form of physic, which may be at most designed to effect some very subordinate purpose. And it is remarkable how strongly even among the educated classes this feeling prevails. [illegible] by the administration of mixtures and boluses is so firmly [illegible] tradition that it is only very slowly that the world will give it up. [illegible] of the friends is [illegible] not want to do more than follow the simple directions of nursing which have been so carefully inculcated and possess a sparse [illegible] the remedial power. There is nothing of the [illegible] known about them in which a great advantage can result. Thus I [illegible] necessary to educate the world into a belief in [illegible] apart from drugs which finds its power in curing in adaptations of the common conditions of life and applications of physiological facts, a medicine which takes into its hands the whole life, [illegible] orders and feelings in every detail with attention [illegible]. It is found in every day practice that the popular misunderstanding of the modern spirit of medicine constantly checks the little tentative [illegible] of a more scientific treatment and it is necessary that it should be generally understood [illegible] the various processes of the [illegible] may be affected by the manipulation of the conditions of common life.—Dr. [illegible] in Health Journal.

First Fruit of the Eastern Decision.

Judge Field has granted Li Hen a writ of habeas corpus, returnable before the United States circuit court [illegible]. Petitioner sets forth that he is a native of Hongkong, and therefore subject to Great Britain, although of Chinese parentage. He came to this port from Hongkong on the steamship Arabic, and Port Collector Eugene L. Sullivan refuses to allow him to land, as he has no certificate as provided for in the restriction act. He asks that he be permitted to come ashore.

San Francisco Items.

Two freight trains collided on the Southern Pacific railroad yesterday morning twelve miles south of San Jose. The two engines and ten box cars were ditched. Three brakemen were injured. It is the first serious accident on that division of the road in twelve years.

Captain Thomas Newhall, an old and respected citizen and a member of the Merchants' exchange, died suddenly yesterday morning of heart disease.

Archbishop Alemany is expected to leave here next week for Rome. He will be present at the consecration of Father Riordan in Chicago as coadjutor to this diocese.

The Wheat Market.

The wheat market is in an unsettled condition, owing to the lightness of the Liverpool markets and to the indisposition of shipping agents to take offers of shippers. In the face of this it is reported that orders from buyers to purchase freely have been sent into the interior. The large number of wheat vessels now in port has caused a decline in rates and the present belief is that lower rates will be accepted during the month.

Separated.

The Gold and Stock Telegraph Company on this coast and the American District Telegraph Company have been separated from the telephone company. George S. Moscow Notes—The Town Full of Hard Characters.

MOSCOW, Sept. 6.—[Special.]—James Steele, railroad contractor, and Messrs. Griffith & McClellan, railroad engineers, have been busily engaged for the past week locating the grade between Colfax and Moscow and depot, side tracks and round house grounds here.

The town is full of strangers, there being many gamblers and hard characters. Among the number several arrests have been made and some parties have been quietly ordered to leave town.

Yesterday Collins Mattery, who deserted last fall from Company I, First cavalry, Fort Colville, was arrested for stealing a government horse and desertion. Mattery was taken to Lewiston and delivered to Sheriff Baird.

Great credit is due Constable Frank McDonald for his promptness in apprehending the hard characters that are arriving here.

"THE DEVIL IS ALCOHOL."

A liberal paper which opposes prohibition because it is a tyrannical method nevertheless puts the case against alcoholic liquors thus:

Science has discovered the devil beyond question. He is no myth. The evil spirit is just what Shakespeare in Othello said he was—Alcohol!

Dr. Lambert, in another column, only voices the sentiment sustained by every modern physiologist to the fact that this "spirit" is a narcotic poison in the human system, paralyzing the nerve centers and doing nothing but evil in the long run until it is thrown out by exhalation from the lungs and skin.

Not being a food the assimilative organs are carefully guarded so that it cannot reach them, and if it did reach them, it would be sure and speedy death.

It is astonishing that sensible people can be deluded by old habits and superstitions into taking this accursed poison into their systems under the pretence of health or religion. Perhaps the theological idea about the freedom of the will helps to keep up this terrible delusion on this subject. The will is only the name for the strongest motive, and when the poisoned blood and every diseased cell of the brain is yelling for a poison that has become a necessity to it, you might as well talk to a man in the gulf of Niagara to will himself back. The will is then gone. Nothing [illegible] but the diseased body, poisoned beyond any power of reaction.

The man who puts alcohol into his mouth, puts a knife to his throat and destroys all possibility of a will to save him. [illegible] a mistake [illegible] the victims of alcohol [illegible]. This voluntary [illegible] is the most [illegible] sight ever witnessed by humanity.

While therefore the liberals oppose all prohibition by state constitution and recognize that this is a moral question and not a criminal one, they should set their faces like flint and steel against every shape of the drinking of alcohol as the most [illegible], immoral, debasing and dirty way of committing suicide known. Just as far as it is indulged it makes the victim a nuisance, a disgrace and an expense to himself, his suffering family and society. If you must poison yourself to death take prussic acid or something that will relieve the world of [illegible] despicable and superfluous life, without years of agony to yourself and others.

Lower Berths in Sleepers.

It is a great study to travel on a sleeper, and watch the different kinds of people. It is a great thing to feel that you own a lower berth and that [illegible] you are only common, ordinary upper berth people, who have got to take a step ladder and crawl up to the roof after you have got to sleep. I always have a lower berth until lately. It has been a habit with me for years to telegraph ahead for a lower berth, and get it and sit in it [illegible] and then have a real nice gentleman come to me with a story about a poor lady who is ill and who is sentenced to sleep in an upper berth and asking me if I had not just as soon change with her, and the poor woman says she is so sorry to ask it [illegible] I had just as soon [illegible] upper berth and she can have the lower berth as well as not. Perhaps it is wrong to [illegible] by lying so, when he knows he will not sleep a wink in there, but it makes the sick woman feel better. How do these sick people who get upper berths know a man will give up his lower berth? [illegible] have a soft thing [illegible] lower berths, I remember right, and yet all the [illegible] were safe in their possessions [illegible] they had faces that showed that they had made up their minds to sleep [illegible]. I went out on the platform while crossing the Missouri river and when exactly between the two states of Iowa and Nebraska, where an oath would be binding, I swore with a lifted right hand, and left hand on the place where I struck a hard traveling bag, [illegible] that I would never telegraph for a lower berth again, and that hereafter I would only travel in sleepers with three rows of berths, and take the top one, and fence myself in with barbed wire. Henceforth the lower berth will only be a memory to me, an ancient superstition, and I resign forever my claim to a lower berth, to those who are sick and who have got cheek.—George W. Peck.

MEDICAL LAKE.

Brief Description of this Charming Summer Resort with a few Words about the Wonderful Curative Power of its Waters.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE CHRONICLE.]

MEDICAL LAKE, Sept.

Nestling high among the romantic hills of the Spokane country lies Medical lake, one of the most beautiful sheets of water on the American continent. Surrounded by fragrant pines and balmy firs, with an atmosphere as pure and bracing as southern California, this place bids fair to become a most popular resort on the Pacific coast. The lake and the town named after it are situated about eight miles from the line of the Northern Pacific railroad, Cheney, W. T., being the most convenient point of debarkation. This charming lake [illegible] Lake George [illegible] point and is far more desirable for visitors, inasmuch as it is a veritable El Dorado for invalids.

Tradition has it that the first settlers in and around the Walla Walla country were informed by the Indians that many miles away there was a lake whose waters exerted a wonderful healing influence upon the worn out and decrepit savages, who would return from a visit to the spot materially improved in health.

The first white man to test its valuable properties was Andrew Lefevre, now a prosperous farmer in this section. Mr. Lefevre halted on the shores of Medical lake about eleven years ago with a band of sheep which he was driving westward. Many of his flock were diseased, and most of them after having been dipped in the waters of the lake were thoroughly cured of the affliction which they were laboring under. Lefevre too had had an attack of paralysis some time previously, which deprived him of the entire use of one of his arms. Encouraged by the wonderful results produced on his sheep, he began bathing his diseased arm in the water, and the effect was so favorable that in a short time he entirely regained the use of the paralyzed limb. He at once took up a large tract of land on the shores of the lake and in the vicinity, and the account of his wonderful cure spread with such rapidity that a large number of invalids were attracted to the spot and met with such startling results that the fame and reputation of the resort were soon established.

On the ground where not long stood but a solitary [illegible] eleven years ago, to-day there is a thriving hamlet and the shores of the lake are lined with pleasant residences, camping outfits and sprightly looking bathing houses. The wonderful efficacy of the waters in relieving disease is undoubted by business and [illegible] is remarkable in the extreme. Patients [illegible] so infirm and debilitated as to require to be carried in the arms like a child, and bathe in this bath [illegible] here a week were able to walk round the town and ultimately returned home entirely [illegible]. Rheumatism and diseases of a kindred nature are peculiarly within the province of these waters to materially relieve, and hundreds [illegible] have gone away [illegible]. I met several reliable gentlemen from Portland and vicinity who cheerfully testify to the wonderful relief derived in their own individual cases, and were quite extravagant in their praises of the location and climate of Medical lake, and the curative properties of its water. The lake is about a mile and a half long and nearly a half mile wide. It is admirably adapted for rowing and boating, there being at all times a bland and genial breeze upon it. There are many picturesque groves along the shores and campers avail themselves of these spots to pitch their canvas. They do not stay [illegible] fold their tents like the Arabs, and if the truth could be learned about the majority of them it was with a sigh of regret that they left the attractive shores of this beautiful lake. Those who are piscatorially inclined will be disappointed for there are no fish in Medical lake. On the other hand as a sort of compensation for the lack of fish there are a large number of wild fowls, such as ducks, geese, etc., which cover the surface for quite a distance. The bottom of Medical lake is in some places of a peculiar formation, consisting of a dark brown mud of the consistency of jelly. This mud also contains wonderful medical properties, being particularly efficacious in eruptive diseases and affections of the skin.

Several enterprising gentlemen have organized a corporation here which is known as the Medical Lake Powders Manufacturing company, which has for its object the evaporation of the water so that a powder may be obtained which will contain all the active principles of the water and will, upon dilution in any part of the world, produce equally as favorable results as if the water. This company has entered upon the manufacture of these powders on a large scale and has a capital stock of $25,000, which will be materially increased in the near future. The company has purchased five acres upon the shores of the lake and upon this they have erected a [illegible] which has a capacity of producing 150 pounds of the powders daily. This product is bottled, wrapped and ultimately will find its way into every drug store in the country. The company officials, George W. Brower president, and George [illegible] secretary, have recently purchased 160 acres of valuable timber land adjoining their property on the shores of the lake and will utilize the timber as fuel.

Among the many attractive residences here is that of Mr. George W. Brower. It is perhaps the finest, commanding as it does a magnificent view of the lake and surrounding country. Mr. Brower is largely interested in the progress and development of Medical lake, and is a large land owner here, which I am [illegible] say he has many demands for and which he sells at reasonable rates. There is a large tract of rich agricultural country within a short distance of this point where, despite the unprecedented dry season, extraordinary crops have been raised. Some of the farmers here I am creditably informed, have raised 40 to 45 bushels of wheat to the acre and 75 bushels of oats has been the average yield [illegible]. Mr. Lefevre above named raised 6 tons of hay to 1 acre, which speaks volumes for the capabilities of the soil. There is a fine belt of timber along Deep creek which is regarded as being quite valuable and will eventually prove a bonanza to its owners.

A few words in relation to Medical lake. It is pleasantly situated, has broad gravelly streets, free from dust and noise, and many are of the opinion that the air of peaceful serenity which pervades the place has as much to with [illegible] back patients to health as anything else. The citizens as a general rule are of an enterprising class, all of them are thoroughly devoted to promoting the interests of the town. You can buy goods as cheap here as in any town along the railroad and get as good articles for your money. There is a post office, which has a tri-weekly mail between here and other points, which will in the near future be expedited to a daily mail. A good livery stable, a drug store, two general stores, two saloons, three hotels, two blacksmith shops and a barber shop are the foundation for a prosperous little town. The best hotel in the place is the Cottage house, kept by G. W. Forbes, an experienced gentleman who provides excellent accommodations and as good a table as can be found in this region.

The Lake house is quite a comfortable hostelry and has a good patronage. The leading merchants of the place are Thellman & Sauer, who keep the best stocked store in this neighborhood. The Sorel brothers have the livery stable here and run a stage line between Medical lake and all the points. Col. E. L. Smith, one of the most prominent citizens in this section, has 170 acres [illegible] the shores of the lake and has a cosy residence thereon. The Medical Lake Press, a live, neat publication, by G. W. Mattice, is a newspaper [illegible] the interests of this region and is devoted to the furtherance of the town's interests. It has an increasing circulation. After investigation it appears very strange to me that more people whose health is impaired do not avail themselves of the opportunities offered by this place for restoration to their pristine vigor. Many Oregon people in easy circumstances spend thousands of dollars annually in journeying to distant health resorts, whereas they might, with but little expense and within thirty-six hours' ride of Portland, find the very best health and strength they seek elsewhere. I venture to predict that of the hundreds suffering from ill health in Portland and the Willamette valley a large number of them will eventually drift here and derive benefit from this spring. The season lasts from May till the middle of October, although bathing is practiced all the year round in the stationary houses on the shores of the lake. Mr. Spence, who keeps the bath house, has an ingenious apparatus for heating the water, whereby the comfort of the bathers is greatly enhanced. The water is also remarkable for its cleansing properties and has a decided excellent softening action on the skin. An immense influx of visitors is confidently expected here next summer, and to that end there is a big hotel scheme in the tapis, which shall be something on the principle of the Hotel Del Monte at Monterey, only on a smaller scale. But this is rumor merely. One fact remains however and that is that the Pacific coast health resort of the future is to be Medical lake, and hundreds of grateful invalids will stand as [illegible] of its sanitary advantages.

Slandering a Dead Man.

New York Herald.

The public—the decent part of it—has now heard about as much as it cares to hear from various sources regarding the late General Garfield's promises. It wants some proofs. Mr. Dorsey and several anonymous slanderers have asserted that General Garfield

Offered Dorsey the secretaryship of the interior.

Promised Mr. Levi P. Morton the secretaryship of the treasury.

Agreed to let Mr. Conkling control the patronage of [illegible].

Agreed to nominate Mr. Stanley Matthews to the supreme court.

All this has been repeated over and over again, but not a scintilla of evidence has been offered to prove any one of these assertions.

General Garfield is dead and cannot defend himself. But his acts are evidence—strong evidence—against these disgraceful assertions.

General Garfield did not in fact make Mr. Dorsey secretary of the interior. He did not make Mr. Morton secretary of the treasury. He did not give [illegible] in the state to Mr. Conkling. As to his nomination of Mr. Matthews, he knew Mr. Matthews to be a very able lawyer, [illegible] who pleaded before the electoral commission, and a candidate for the senate whom he and Mr. John Sherman and Governor Foster, Garfield's friends, [illegible] to get out of their way.

There is therefore nothing—absolutely nothing—in General Garfield's acts as president which gives the least color to these assertions, and as a man is dead and unable to defend himself and those who pretended to be his friends while he was alive and in power are making a very free [illegible], it seems to us that honorable men have a right to regard these accusations of Garfield as infamous. If any one has proof of these [illegible] he had better do it quickly. But if there was the least proof it would have been produced long ago.

Chills, Malaria, Dumb Ague, and all kindred diseases are absolutely and permanently cured by Hussmann Pollard's Pills. This remedy is a never-failing specific for these ills, purifies the system and restores the patient to perfect health. Druggists.

SKIN HUMORS.

Wonderful Cure of a Lad 12 Years Old, who for eight years, from the top of his head to his ankles, was One Mass of Scabs.

My son, a lad of 12 years of age, was afflicted with the worst case of Eczema for a period of eight years. So virulent was it that from the top of his head to within a few inches of his ankles he was one mass of scabs, which refused to yield to any treatment that was attempted. Every remedy that was suggested by his friends or physicians was tried in vain. Allopathy, homeopathy, herbs, roots, salt water baths, flaxseed poultices, soaps, ointments, and in short everything that could be done to eradicate the disorder seemed only to aggravate it, and the child's life became a burden to him, and the expense of the various experiments was a constant drain upon our resources.

My wife reading the advertisement of the CUTICURA REMEDIES in one of the daily papers, resolved to make one more attempt at a cure. The disease was now encroaching upon his face and seemed incurable. I gave a reluctant consent to the proposal, and an interview was sought with a famous lady physician of New York, who made a most thorough examination of the case, and promised a cure without the least hesitation by the use of the CUTICURA REMEDIES. In one week there was a marked change, the raw and angry sores began to grow pale, and along the outer edges began to scale off, and as time wore on they began to disappear entirely, until at the present writing the only vestige is one small spot upon the forearm, scarcely visible and fast disappearing.

Think after eight years of expense and anxiety, we have the utmost satisfaction of seeing the child's skin as fair and smooth as it was before this dreadful cutaneous disorder attacked him.

Sincerely yours,
CHAS. HAYRE HINKLE.

FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 7, 1883.

THE ISSUE IN OHIO

The prohibitionists, or rather the restrictionists—for that is what they really are—have forced their way to the front place on the political platform, and if all the friends of temperance were wise enough to adopt the name of restrictionists, in place of the misleading term by which many of them have sought to be known, they would present a very solid front against the breweries and distilleries. The regulation of the liquor traffic is the predominant issue in Ohio, and the same question is the most prominent one in all the populous middle belt of states, reaching as far to the southwest as Kansas and in the northwest including Iowa and Minnesota. The old considerations which once governed political contests in these states are overbalanced by the liquor issue which in our judgment is soon to become national. But in no state has the issue ever been handled in so practical and promising a way as in Ohio by the republican party, within the past year. The position taken by the republican party there becomes stronger the more closely it is examined and the more vigorously it is attacked. For thirty years Ohio has been practically the paradise of the liquor dealer. Through a mistaken zeal and determination not to have the state compromised even indirectly by any recognition of the evil traffic the authors of the Ohio constitution inserted in that instrument a provision forbidding the legislature to license the sale of liquor. This is substantially the same provision which the republican party are unwisely endeavoring to engraft upon the constitution of Iowa. It has been utterly abortive in Ohio, a colossal failure which the people are unanimous in declaring as worse than useless. It is true the Iowa amendment is disguised in a different form of words, but it will prove to be if adopted almost identical in its practical effect. In Ohio the trade in liquor has remained up to a recent time as free from restriction, from regulation and from special taxation as the trade in bread or bibles.

For the first time, last year the republican took up the matter in a practical and sensible manner, and passed a law—the Scott law—taxing the sellers of spirits $200, and the sellers of beer $100 per annum. The law has worked perfectly. The supreme court has decided that it is in strict accordance with the constitution. The tax has been collected by the ordinary machinery and has yielded at the rate of $2,000,000 a year to the public treasury. The question presented to the voters of the state, as Senator Sherman says in his recent able speech is shall this law be repealed? This is the only vital question of policy to be decided in the Ohio campaign this year. There are, it is true before the voters of the state two proposed amendments to the constitution, one prohibiting the manufacture and sale of liquor in the state, and the other providing for licensing the trade. It is not probable that either of them will be accepted. "As to those proposed amendments," Senator Sherman says, "the republican party does not attempt to prescribe which shall be adopted or whether either should be. It recognizes the well known fact that there is an honest difference of opinion among the people of Ohio of all parties as to the best method of dealing with the liquor traffic. Whether prohibitory laws will accomplish the object desired is honestly doubted by many citizens who are in favor of effective temperance laws, but who believe that the general assembly can be safely entrusted to legislate upon this subject as it does in matters affecting the life, property and personal rights of all. It is in no party sense that these amendments are submitted. If the prohibitory amendment should prevail, it will be the duty of the general assembly to enforce it by appropriate legislation. If both amendments fail, we shall have the Scott law, now established as constitutional which in my judgment will tend more than any other that has been proposed under our present constitution, to check the evils of intemperance."

Mr Sherman also shows why the liquor traffic should be taxed, to compensate in some degree for the expense entailed by it to pay for maintaining the poor houses, penitentiaries, jails and asylums which are largely filled by those who are addicted to the use of liquor, and to take care of the innocent women and children who are made homeless and destitute by the fatal habit of fathers, husbands and brothers. In the thirty years since the new constitution was adopted, he said, the state has lost through failure to enforce this species of taxation $50,000,000. One great advantage which this species of taxation has over the so-called prohibition laws, which Mr Sherman does not allude to is that under it the state or the public at large gets the benefit of the tax, while under prohibition, the complainants, the prosecuting officers and the lawyers receive nearly all the money which the liquor dealers pay as a penalty instead of a tax for carrying on their business. The traffic is no where absolutely prevented where any considerable portion of the community want liquor, and it is certainly better that the money levied upon the traffic should go to compensate in some measure for the injury it inflicts upon the public than that it should go into the hands of prosecuting officers and be a standing bribe to secure practical immunity from all taxation. The dispute in Ohio is one of unusual simplicity. Shall the Scott law stand or shall it be repealed? No party ever went into a canvass with a sounder or more sensible platform, nor we may add judging from present indications, with better prospects of success. A defeat on this issue will impeach the intelligence and political sagacity of the republicans, and prove a serious detriment to the temperance cause.

We learn that a false impression prevails that the celebration committee have taken entire charge of the matter of decorating the city, and that private decorations will interfere with their general plans. The plans of the committee only comprehend the decoration of First street for a distance of ten blocks—that is, the street proper. The adornment of buildings is left to individual occupants, and it is desired that they be as elaborate as possible. The committee only request that banners or other ornamentations not be stretched across the streets. It is to be hoped that decorations will not be confined to the line of march which will really not be more conspicuous than other localities. The whole city will be under inspection. The illumination will, of course be wholly independent of the procession and it is desirable that the city shall be a blaze of light. The best method of illumination is very simple. Pieces of board placed across windows and fitted with half candles in sockets of nails or tin are very effective, easily made, and the cost will comparatively be nothing. Fear has been expressed in certain quarters that illumination will vitiate insurance but we have it from the most competent authority that this idea is unfounded. The material for decoration is available at cheap rates in any quantity desired.

It seems somehow to have a demoralizing influence upon a good many men to get into office. The reform governor of Michigan Mr Begole, who floated into office on last year's tidal wave, is the latest conspicuous example of demoralization. He was elected on an anti-monopoly and reform platform on a distinct pledge that he would not accept any favors at the hands of corporations but is now accused by the Detroit Tribune of not only accepting, but soliciting free railroad passes and telegraph franks. If he had remained in a private station he might have continued to be a worthy citizen and a credit to his family. Offices are dangerous. And by the way, some of the other tidal-wave governors have proved disappointing. This is particularly the case with Gov Butler and Gov. Cleveland, neither of whom have been able "to dry all they hung out," so to speak.

"GENERAL AVERAGE"

A large part of the cargo of the Queen was thrown overboard in order to get her off the spit when she grounded. Who shall pay for the loss, is a question of interest to many of our readers. If the cargo is insured the underwriters of course pay the owners the amount for which it was insured. But the loss is apportioned under the rule of "general average" among those who were benefited by the loss. The fundamental principle of the law of general average comes from the Rhodian law, the first known system of marine jurisprudence where the rule is stated thus: "If goods are thrown overboard in order to lighten a ship the loss incurred for the value of all shall be made good by the contribution of all." "In order to constitute a case for general average," said Mr Justice Grier in the supreme court of the United States, "three things must concur: 1. A common danger or a danger in which ship cargo and crew all participate, a danger imminent and apparently inevitable except by voluntarily incurring the loss of a part of the whole to save the remainder. 2. There must be a voluntary jettison jactus or casting away some portion of the joint concern for the purpose of avoiding the imminent peril or in other words, a transfer of the peril from the whole to a particular portion of the whole. 3. This attempt to avoid a common peril must be successful. The right to contribution is not made to depend on any real or presumed intention to destroy the thing cast away, but on the fact that it has been selected to suffer the peril in place of the whole, that the remainder may be saved."

The practical rule adopted in ordinary cases is to estimate the ship cargo and freight at their net values to their owners in the state in which they arrive at the port of destination, not including in these values the sums made good for sacrifices, and to assess the contribution accordingly. The contributory value of the ship is accordingly her value to her owner in the state in which she arrives whether damaged or otherwise including the sum made good in the general average for any sacrifices which may have been made of a part of the ship or her materials. The value of the cargo for contribution is its net market value on arrival after deducting the charges incurred for freight, duty and landing expenses but without deducting the costs of insurance or commissions. The value of the freight or contribution is the sum received by the ship-owner on completion of the voyage for the carriage of the cargo, after deducting from that sum the charges then due, the port charges at place of destination, costs of re-shipping and of outward pilotage, etc. Under the general rule that only those things which pay shall contribute, the baggage of passengers, the provisions and ammunition of the ship and the seamen's wages are exempt from contribution. These are the general principles as laid down in the books and they are sufficiently clear to satisfy the desire for information of all who are not directly interested in the loss sustained by the grounding of the Queen. Others will have the aid of lawyers and adjusters of insurance companies to protect them in their rights and while, as is usual in such cases, many nice questions will arise, substantial justice will doubtless be meted out to all. In the meantime pending the decision of such questions, the saved goods will be delivered to their proper consignees who will be required to give a bond that the amount of general average apportioned to each will be paid. The general average of loss will be paid by the insurance companies on all goods that were insured, and those who did not take the precaution to have their goods insured will have to pay for the risk which they assumed.

ON THE RIGHT TRACK

Postmaster General Gresham has at last got on the right track, the track which leads to true civil service reform. He has begun to remove some of the superfluous officers who are unable to find employment for their gigantic intellects in the service of the government and so spend their time in sloshing around in politics and other outside matters. The postmaster at Atlanta, an ex governor, if you will believe it, with five assistants has been removed, and the postmaster at Norfolk has been asked to resign because he refused to give up his office as state senator. A Virginia post office inspector who was advertised to make numerous campaign speeches has been informed that his time is paid for by the government, and still later Paul Vandervoort, chief clerk of the railway mail service at Omaha, has been removed because of his prolonged absence from duty. Mr. Vandervoort as many know, was commander in chief of the Grand Army of the Republic last year. It seems that he entered into a kind of an arrangement with Timothy O Howe, late postmaster general, and advocate of third termism by which he was to travel over the country on his commission as post office inspector, which gives free transportation on all railroads, steamboats and stages which carry the United States mail, inspecting state encampments and forming new posts and in return for this privilege have new posts named for his patron. It is not recorded that he got as many Timothy O Howe posts established as the illustrious Hatton has had post offices named for him. But we know that he asked to have at least one named for Mr Howe and based his request on the grounds those stated. Judge Gresham, it seems, takes a somewhat more limited view of the proprieties of such an indirect and diffusive method of serving the United States than his predecessors did, and he has removed Mr Vandervoort. But really the most discouraging thing about it is that we should be told that the removal has excited great indignation at Omaha, that "this removal is considered an outrage." Is it true that the people care no more than that for decent regard to the proprieties of the public service? Do they want men to hold sinecure positions under the government that they may have free transportation from one side of the country to the other, and go and come at their sovereign pleasure, letting the United States know that they are in office only by their quarterly calls for salary? If this is what the people want it shows how demoralized they have become under the system in which Mr Timothy O Howe and men of his school were trained and desired to see perpetuated by third termism. It shows how much the people need educating, how much their consciences need to be aroused and their moral sense quickened before they will become capable even of appreciating decency in public and official life.

In making these comments we are influenced by no prejudice against the Grand Army of the Republic of which the writer of this article is a member, and in whose good name this protest is made. Mr Vandervoort is a pleasant and courteous gentleman and was an efficient commander in chief of an organization which will grow in honor as its ranks diminish. But Mr Vandervoort has been for the past year doing exactly what it ought to be impossible for an officer of the government to do. There ought to be no more officers than there is business. The constitution of the state of Vermont provides that whenever any office becomes through its emoluments attractive to men, who should have some business or calling on which they may rely for support, the emoluments of the office shall be diminished. The great evil of our public service is that it offer attractions to so many men, because of direct emoluments and indirect opportunities for gain which are out of all proportion to the labor which it exacts. Every superfluous officer should be removed and those who are left receive only fair pay for actual work. The United States government is not empowered by the constitution to levy taxes to support Grand Army officers, or to maintain a horde of politicians with roving commissions to look after the interests of parties or party candidates. If the indignant people at Omaha will only think of it a moment, they will see that Judge Gresham is not the man who committed the outrage.

The self consciousness that is displayed by great men is very amusing. It is said that a lady once wrote a note to Roscoe Conkling when he was in the senate asking permission to bring her little girl to see him. He replied in a courteous note naming the hour at which he would receive her. At the hour named the lady and child stood before him. "Mary," said the mother to her child, "this is the great Senator Conkling." "Yes little Mary," said Lord Roscoe with a Jovian smile "but remember," solemnly lifting a forefinger "that there is a greater than Senator Conkling." Senator Sumner expressed an opinion of himself during the war when he said in response to the question, "what is the news?" "that there was none except that I am a little better this morning." It takes about as much ground for Joseph Cook to turn around on as it does for Mr Conkling, whom he rivals in the dramatic entrances he makes before audiences. He has been accused of being aware of the fact that he has the same initials as our Saviour, which reminds us of a story that is told of an Episcopal clergyman in New York city by the name of Horatio Southgate. He came from Maine where he was known as a conceited young man. One time some of his old schoolmates in Maine were in the city and went to hear him preach. As they left the church one of them called the others attention to the fact that Mr Southgate had his initials painted on the walls and said "I always knew that Horatio was very self conceited but never supposed he would carry it so far. I H S. I Horatio Southgate."

The Boston Advertiser takes the same view of the significance of the immense popular demonstration in San Francisco in honor of Garfield that we have taken. It says what no prudent politician should forget, the brutal assault on the character of the late President Garfield will make the country take the greater interest in the account of the laying of the foundation of a monument to him in San Francisco. The men who are striving to make political capital by slandering the good name of Garfield are answered in part by this magnificent demonstration. The nation which two years ago was watching over the dying president has not forgotten him, nor will it fail to remember his recent assailants.

NOTES FROM THE DALLES

[FROM THE OREGONIAN'S LOCAL CORRESPONDENT

THE DALLES, Sept

Mr George Young of A[illegible] is in the city.

Circuit court proceedings move along slowly. But one case has been disposed of.

Mary Moabus aged 9 years died yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock of brain fever.

Monday's down train, 8 o'clock in the evening, ran into a band of Jackson's sheep between here and Five Mile, killing about sixty.

The decoration of Front street under the supervision of Mr Josh Hardy is getting on. Mr Hardy is well known as a decorative artist and no doubt our display will come up to the standard.

Mr George H Knaggs, of Columbia river fame prophesied yesterday an immense rain storm. Of course we did not get it and it is more than likely it will never rain here again now. Mr Knaggs is a hoodo.

Joseph Southwell a farmer on Ten Mile creek, met with a series of misfortunes during last week. While riding his horse—a fine animal—up a steep grade the horse's foot slipped causing it to fall and break its neck. The next day Mr Southwell purchased another horse and while putting him into the stable was kicked by the brute in the shoulder, dislocating it. The next night (Friday) his house caught fire and was burned to the ground, nothing being saved except a bedstead. The house was a new one having been built this spring. Mr Southwell's shoulder will be a source of anxiety to him for some time. Mr S. following the example of Job is patiently waiting for his next affliction.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla will cure your Catarrh and do away with that sickening odor of the breath.

WHAT IS IT?

CANDLE FISH, or OOLACHAN is a species of fish similar to smelt. It has a rich, delicious flavor, and all who try it pronounce it superior to the sardine. It is smoked and sugar-cured and packed in hermetically sealed cans. Although a novelty it has met with large sales. All who have not tasted Candle Fish should do so at once.

CITY.

THE RIVER COLLISION.—The British iron bark Aberlemno came up to Central wharf yesterday afternoon to repair damages received in the collision with the steamship Columbia. After repairs she will proceed to the United Kingdom as soon as finished she will proceed with her wheat cargo. The first officer of the bark reports that at 10 A. M. Tuesday while lying at anchor off Columbia City, a steamship came in sight. The bark was headed up stream with the port anchor out and the steamer lying on port side. The starboard anchor was hanging from the cathead. The first officer was on the forecastle deck and had the bell ringing constantly. The steamer at first appeared as passing to port but changed her helm and ran to starboard of the bark. The steamer struck the jibboom of the bark swung to starboard, struck the jibboom of the bark swung to starboard, the side striking the iron bowsprit of the bark and the foremost gears of both vessels becoming entangled. The steamer passed ahead swinging in ...ed so that her starboard bow struck against the hanging anchor of the bark driving one fluke into the bark and the other into the steamer. The latter lost her rail and foretopmast. The bark lost her jibboom had her bowsprit ..., all stays, whiskers and cathead carried away ... a sole stove through plates into lower forecastle ... The steamer clung to a flying jib taking it ... She stopped immediately but finding no ... was wanted and was no... ... The ship's officer stated ... no good reason can be assigned for the collision ... the bark was using all precaution and a vessel ... the bark was more than twice her length. The ... of the Columbia have as yet offered no statement of the disaster. A survey will probably be had ... to-day. The Aberlemno was launched at Dumbarton, Scotland in May, 1876 and is owned by the Aber Shipping Company.

WELCOME RAIN.—About 7 o'clock last evening quite unexpectedly a gentle rain commenced falling. It was more welcome than the flowers in May and ... little rivulets began to tinkle in the tin spouts ... made the sweetest music heard in this section ... The poet says "Into every ... many a long day ... life some rain must fall when the days are dark and dreary." Well, the days for weeks ... been dark and dreary enough God ... for months but nary a drop ... has fallen and the prospect had begun to look poor for seeing any in the life time of the present generation unless one should live to be as old as Methuselah. The shower soon changed to a gentle drizzle which in average Oregon weather would be deemed to mean business and this was kept up till after midnight. What a pleasure it will be to see a clear sky and bright sun once more, and to be assured that Mount Hood and St. Helens are still in their places and have not degenerated to holes in the ground as they were when first found. The police are instructed to arrest the first man woman or child seen abroad with an umbrella, and all are requested to leave their overgoods at home in order to insure a continuance of the blessed rain.

BUSY SCENE.—The site of the new hotel presents a scene of great activity at present. Teams and laborers are busy completing the excavation, workmen are mixing crushed rock and cement and laying the concrete beds for the foundation while masons are laying the same in places. Teams are depositing loads of stone and cement around the block, stone cutters are at work on the material for the first story ... is in progress at one corner and the whole ... is a scene of busy labor. The crushed rock ... stone for the foundations comes from the ... a Marquam's gulch, while the stone for the ... comes from Clackamas station. A bank of ... suitable for building purposes, has been struck ... the bottom of the excavation a cross-section of ... with the different layers of soil above can be ... at the north side of the excavation. A great number of barrels of cement is being piled up on the sidewalk and a shed is being erected over them in anticipation of the rain which will surely come ... time.

SUCCESSFUL HUNTERS.—Messrs Gilbert Grantham and Nerdles, of East Portland who left about a ... ago for Bear ... prairie, Washougal country W. T., write back to their friends most enthusiastic letters from one of which the following extract is taken: "I must say this is a fine country. There is plenty of vacant timber land yet to be taken up in this section and he who is the first here may consider himself very lucky. Game is also very plentiful, and for the time we have been here we have met with unlimited success in killing bear deer elk and grouse. Fish are also numerous. Trout of the finest quality fill the streams which are very clear and cold. The first deer killed by the party was shot by ... Gilbert, and it excited him so that he fainted away and it became necessary to dash cold water in his face to revive him. To return to the country it is the finest we have seen in the territory. The timber is of the best quality and largest size, and there is an inexhaustible quantity of it."

ACCIDENTS.—John Stevens a brakeman employed on a construction train at Richardson's landing, on the Kalama extension, had one of his feet badly crushed yesterday by getting it caught under the wheels of the tender. He was taken to St. Vincent's hospital where it was found that amputation was necessary and the foot was accordingly cut off yesterday afternoon. Stevens is a native of New York, aged 21 years. J. Craffee, a sailor on board a ship lying at the East Portland dock had his left leg badly injured yesterday afternoon by the slipping of a heavy spar he was helping to move. An examination of the limb was made by Dr. Saylor and it was found that one of the bones was broken and the ankle dislocated. He was taken to St. Vincent's hospital. Fred Hanson a longshoreman employed in unloading the Oregon yesterday had his left hand crushed by a heavy piece of machinery falling upon it, breaking two of the bones. The injury was attended to and Hanson conveyed to his residence.

LIBERTY REGAINED.—Wm Boland, deputy poundmaster who was held to answer before the grand jury upon a charge of horse stealing or to put it more mildly because Justice Bushwiler thought he was over zealous in impounding animals in this particular instance was unable at first to furnish bonds and therefore very much against his will he found himself an inmate of a prison cell. Good friends came to his rescue however, and yesterday his bail was furnished and he proudly walked forth into the ... a free man once more. It is reported that this little affair has caused him to lose his desire to serve the city in this particular capacity and his resignation may confidently be expected. Two other prisoners were discharged from the jail at the same time. One was Harry Kelley who has served several weeks for assault and battery, and the other was ... Franklin, imprisoned for selling liquor to Indians.

SOMEWHAT MARE KNOWN.—A friend of THE OREGONIAN, who read in yesterday's issue the item concerning a passenger of the Mountain Queen who remarked "Well, governor I feel better, ... sent a couple of lines to a little ... lady in California that I make her ... happy," furnishes the following. The above remark was made to ex Governor S. F. Chadwick by Hon. P. B. Tully of Gilroy, California, congressman-elect, who is a guest of the Northern Pacific railroad, and has now gone with the party to witness the driving of the golden spike. Mr. Tully is the man who ran against and defeated our Governor Woods, of Oregon. He is a fine specimen of the ... southern gentlemen, and at all times a most genial companion.

WANT HYDRAULIC FIRE PLUGS.—A petition asking the common council to adopt the Hydraulic Elevator company's system of fire plugs for Front and First streets, from Morrison to G streets has been circulated by Mr. Morey and has been signed by every business firm on the streets designated and by the leading capitalists of the city. The capability of these plugs for extinguishing fires has been severally demonstrated to the entire satisfaction of those who have had them erected on their premises, and by their use have been enabled to check fires before they have attained headway. The adoption of these hydrants by the city will be a public benefit.

COWARDICE.—There was on board the Queen of the Pacific when she stranded several of that class of gentry known as commercial travelers. One or two ... the hope that title by courtesy, but for whom the ... "drummer" would be too good, acted the part ... cowards and cravens as soon as danger was apprehended. Their precious ... were the first ... and after that a great rush to get into the ... One pushed by a woman who was about ... down the ladder and ... to be ... He was most deservedly and ... hustled back and made to wait. With this exception, the exhibition of cowardice on board was ...

RED AS A ROSE ARE THEY.—The fire alarm boxes are being painted a fiery blood red—the color of an engine house. This is done in order to make them more conspicuous and distinguish them from the letter boxes. A short time since the fire department of an eastern city was rung out by a lady who got an ... key open to put a letter in and seeing the ... thinking inside to pull down the hook did so and ... surprised to see, instead of a letter carrier the ... fire department coming in answer to her summons. The fire commission ... have taken precautions to prevent an affair of this kind here.

FLORAL LOCOMOTIVE.—Messrs Henrichsen & Greenberg, the jewelers have placed in one of their show windows a floral locomotive and tender which is attracting great attention from all passers by. It is constructed entirely of flowers and ... display great skill and rare taste for the ... on the part of Mr. Greenberg who did the ... It is christened the Henry Villard and is ... as a part of Henrichsen & Greenberg's display ... the last spike festivities here.

TIMELY DISCOVERY.—The residence of W. B. King ... narrow escape from destruction yesterday ... Some ashes which had been placed in a ... standing at the rear of the house set fire to ... the flames had caught the weather boarding ... discovered by a neighbor. They were ... extinguished without doing ... In the prevailing extremely dry condition ... things persons cannot be too careful about ashes ... anything else likely to cause a fire.

A RECOGNITION.—A prominent citizen suggests ... would be the correct thing to present the ... of the lifeboat who went to the assistance of the Queen with a suitable testimonial. Everyone ... on board and the citizens generally, would doubtless be willing to contribute to a ... for that purpose if some one would only take ... matter in hand. The brave fellows who at ... the hazardous undertaking are certainly ... to some recognition.

ORCHESTRAL UNION AND THE CELEBRATION.—To ... an apparent misapprehension it may be ... that the Orchestral Union as a society is in no ... connected with the issuance of tickets to the ... concert. These tickets are in the ... the subscribers to the celebration fund ... the Orchestral Union gives the concert a ... of the musical contingent of the celebration.

... BUILDING PLANS.—The wall dividing ... story of Wm Reid's new building at the ... of First and Pine streets into two rooms is ... down, throwing the whole front of the ... into one room. It is stated that the ... of a second national bank intended to have ... there, has fallen through, or the present ... which, perhaps, accounts for the change ... building.

WILL BE READY.—Work on the Kalama extension of the Northern Pacific has been pushed with great vigor of late in order, if possible to have it completed by the time the last spike party arrives here so that Mr. Villard can ride through to Tacoma without change of cars. It has been deemed almost impossible to have the work completed but it is now quite certain that it will be finished in time. The only break now left is in the mile and a half trestle at Scappoose which it is confidently expected will be closed up and the track laid so that trains can run from here to Kalama on the 8th inst. The road will reach the river for the present at Tide creek near Kalama but the permanent crossing will probably be located at Goble rock some distance below.

OPENING OF PUBLIC SCHOOLS POSTPONED.—The board of directors of the public schools announce that they have decided to postpone the annual opening, until Thursday of next week. This has been done on account of the festivities connected with the celebration partly which occurring Monday evening prevents the pupils from obtaining needed ... It was intended to open Monday morning as previously announced forming classes and laying down courses of study in the forenoon using the afternoon for the purpose of a rehearsal at Mechanics' pavilion of those children who are to take part in the concert and of step entirely on Tuesday. All children will probably be better satisfied with the change.

THICK SMOKE ON THE RIVER.—The weather on the lower Columbia yesterday seriously interfered with navigation. The ... did not reach Kalama ... and the ... The Queen ... left ... had not reached Kalama at 8 P. M. The light rain increased the smoke which also on this account hung still lower over the river.

SCARCITY OF FRUIT.—The supply of fruit in town at present is rather meagre. That shipped on the Queen was all thrown overboard on the seals which make ... their headquarters are now feasting on grapes peaches and melons. The fruit shipped by the Oregon was received in very bad condition owing to the unusual length of the voyage.

AFRAID OF THE FOG.—The ship A... is ready to go to sea but the captain is unable to find any one willing to undertake the job of towing her down the river. The danger of collision in the prevailing smoke makes such an undertaking rather a risky one. The Aut... goes to the Sound to load with lumber for Hongkong.

REHEARSAL.—The Apollo club will meet to night at Masonic hall for a special rehearsal. A full attendance is earnestly requested.

THE GOLDEN SPIKE TRAIN.

UMATILLA Sept 6.—[Special.]—The train of full main sleepers bearing guests from Portland and San Francisco to the scene of driving the last spike passed here at 10.30. All the cars were handsomely decorated. The train carries two dining cars two commissary cars and a kitchen. Guests from San Francisco are: Captain J. C. Ainsworth, Captain George J. Ainsworth, General L. H. Allen, Captain Von Oterendorp, Hon Adolph Rosenthal, R. R. Thompson, Captain Oliver Eldridge, Wm Norris, F. Norris and others. Among the northwestern guests are Senator Dolph and Senator Slater of Oregon, Governor Moody, Governor Newell, Congressman M. C. George, principal railway magnates and representative merchants and professional men. The train waited six hours in Portland for ex Gov Perkins but he did not arrive from Astoria.

INDIAN CHIEF MURDERED.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

DEEP CREEK FALLS W. T. Sept 4.

Tree Mountain Williams an Indian and Chief of the Whitestones was shot and fatally wounded by Wm Jackson a half breed about eight miles from here Friday night. It seems that Chief Williams had had a dispute with Jackson whose white father is a saloon keeper in relation to whisky being given to some members of his (Williams) tribe. The latter was going home in a wagon with his squaw when Jackson appeared in the road raised his rifle and shot him in the right breast, the ball passing across through his left lung and making its exit on the left side. Jackson then fled. A reward of $50 has been offered for his capture. His brother was shot and killed some time ago in Cheney by Sheriff Dillon while resisting arrest and trying to kill the sheriff. Another brother is in the penitentiary. William Jackson the assassin is a desperate man and it is thought he will have to be killed before he will surrender. Chief Williams was dying last night.

BRIEF MENTION.

Only nineteen of the new postal notes have so far been issued at the post office in this city.

The Toledo was detained at her dock two hours and a half yesterday morning on account of the fog.

The United States court will be in session two days of next week after which there will be a vacation of two weeks.

The colored minstrel band now in this city attract considerable attention by their street display and not a little from the fact that one of the players is a young lady.

Over $500 worth of fish, fowl and game have been sent to the Northern Pacific front from this city for the feeding of the guests of Mr. Villard. One halibut weighed 150 pounds.

Four thousand pounds of meat each day has been contracted for to feed the Northern Pacific guests who will be quartered in this city on board the steamship Queen of the Pacific.

Neustadter Bros. have filed another attachment upon the stock of ... Summerfield amounting to $.. 3 31. A prior attachment was made to secure a note for $800 held by M. A. Z. ...

What is fame? The following special dispatch to the San Francisco Examiner from Victoria will serve to illustrate: Henry Ward Beecher and Donald Dennie arrived to day from the Sound.

Several parties around town have received shipments of fresh eastern oysters via the Northern Pacific. They arrive in good condition and all that but the express charges are paralyzing. On four dozen tins containing three dozen oysters each the charge was $18 85.

The rattlesnake at Plummer & Byerly's was given a large rat for breakfast the other day but the rodent was plucky and fought for a meal of his own. After twenty four hours' hard battling both failed to come to the scratch and the referee killed the rat while the snake was given a chance to recover.

AMUSEMENTS.

THE MINSTRELS.—It was a most enthusiastic audience last night at the New Market theater that welcomed back to this city M. Ainsley Scott's colored minstrels. The troupe from constant association together for the past four months has improved in every way. New voices and most excellent ones are noticed in the quartette glee club while a good orchestra before the footlights leaves nothing to be desired. Fourteen persons among them Scott the ... and the two ladies of the party occupy the stage during the first part and the ... of their voices is strong well-trained and melodious. ... the inimitable, brought down the house with his impersonation of a Chinaman and the burlesque of Il Trovatore which closed the evening's entertainment was a wonderful medley of farcical acting and the best of singing. A change of programme is announced for this evening and another for tomorrow night. The only matinee of the troupe will be given to morrow afternoon.

NOTICE.

It being desirable that the celebration of the completion and opening of the N. P. R. R. be made a most successful demonstration the committee ... earnestly request that the citizens ... especially ... all ... and doing business ... decorate and illuminate their dwellings ... places of business as profusely as practicable. A very effective illumination can be made by placing rows of lights or candles in each window and by suspending Chinese lanterns in front of the buildings.

The committee would also ask that the citizens will refrain from suspending banners flags or devices across First street, between Vine and Salmon streets as such would interfere with the public decorations provided by the committee.

It is also respectfully requested that as little gas as possible be used on the ten blocks on First street above designated as a full pressure will be needed for the gas illumination.

The illumination of the city will take place on the night of the 10th and the general celebration on the 11th instant.

CHANGE OF TIME OF PARADE.

Owing to the dense fogs now prevailing on the river it will be impossible for the United States troops and others from a distance to arrive at an early hour. It has therefore been decided to have the procession start at 12.30 instead of 10.30. All should carefully note this change—12.30 not 10.30.

NOTES.

A stand with seating accommodation for a large number has been erected opposite Effinger's at the corner of First and Ash streets.

To form all the letters and symbols of fire along the ten blocks of decorated street there will be used 25 000 gas jets and three miles of pipe.

All the festoons have been strung between the posts from Vine to Salmon street and the wreaths put up. Yesterday the workmen were engaged in decorating Union block with evergreens and ribbons.

The O. R. & N. Co.'s ferry and slips are being decorated in a manner conformatory to the decoration employed upon First street. Festoons will be hung from frame-work erected over the boat and poles will support similar decoration over the slips.

Business men occupying stores in the Cosmopolitan block on Front street between Oak and Stark will decorate their building most profusely with flags and bunting. Red white and blue streamers already hang upon the outer walls.

General Morrow makes the announcement that he expects the several division commanders whose names are to be found in the order of procession published above to attend to the details of organizing and getting into position their respective commands.

The grand stand for the accommodation of guests during the passage of the procession is already in course of construction on the court house square. There will be five tiers of raised seats along the Fourth street side these being carpeted and otherwise made comfortable.

It has been suggested that the celebration committee take steps to have all vehicles keep to the right in going up and down First street on the night of the illumination. This will prevent confusion and allow the occupants of the carriages a better chance to see the decorations, mottoes etc.

A very attractive feature will be six immigrant wagons drawn by oxen. Mr. O. H. Dodd who is arranging for this matter wants ... two or three of the wagons with ... children. Any ... or to put it fashionably tiny blonde children—who would like a place in the big show with a free ride for which should call on Mr. Dodd.

IN BANK

The last will and testament of Wm. P. Brown was yesterday admitted to probate. It is quite a remarkable document being a parchment copy about three feet long and two feet wide of the original will which has been probated in England. Brown was known to many in Portland as "Lumber William." He died Nov ... 1882 and left property and land in this county which are now valued at about $50 000. The gross amount of his personal estate is £610 12s 1d. Before Brown moved to this country he resided at Marl..., county of Northampton and still later at Byron Villa, White Horse road.

In the matter of the estate of Henry Johnson Phillips deceased the final account of the administrator was approved and the judge ordered distribution of the property among the heirs.

Nancy Hubbard was appointed administratrix of the estate of Lebbin Hill deceased with bonds at $400 for the faithful performance of her duties.

LAW

Alex. M. ... renounced his allegiance to all foreign powers especially to the kingdom of Great Britain took the oath and was admitted to citizenship in the United States. The court then adjourned until the 10th inst.

Police Court

In the police court yesterday Eugene La Rocque was fined $10 for assault upon a Chinaman. He was discharged upon the larceny charge by paying his wash bill. The Chinaman had been arrested for assault but the case was dismissed.

The charges against Sallie Haight and three men charged with smoking opium was also dismissed the arrests having broken up her opium den and it was an open question as to whether they could be convicted upon the original charge.

Tom Reed a steamboat hand was given ten days in jail for disorderly conduct. Reed believes that he is a thorough tough. After being arrested he wished to go out with an officer for bail. FRIDAY MORNING, SEPT. 7, 1883.

CHRISTIANITY VS. BEECHER.

In his recent lecture on evolution Mr Beecher said that he proposed to show that Christianity was not going to be injured in any way by the exponents of the new theory, and declared himself to be a Christian man and minister imbued with the Christian religion to the very core and center of his being And as speaking from the heart of the Christ that died upon the cross This is strong and unmistakable language and seems a direct avowal of his purposes, Christianity and creed But a careful perusal of his lecture demonstrates the lamentable insincerity of his purposes, and the utter absurdity of his position and pretentions, and is so inconsistent with and antagonistic to these introductory professions, that without impeaching his sincerity, I am at a loss how otherwise to account for them from a person of his reputed education and intelligence

As an illustration let us contrast his utterances on the inspiration and authenticity of the old testament scriptures with what Christ has taught on the same subject, and see how they harmonize Christ says, "But from the beginning of the creation God made them male and female thereby acknowledging the authenticity of Moses account of the creation But the lecturer seems to take quite a different view of it. He tells us they were evolved from germs through all the lower forms of animal life to their present state Again "And Jesus said, Do ye not therefore err because ye know not the scriptures neither the power of God The lecturer says they are the devil's highway to infidelity Christ says, "And as touching the dead that they rise have ye not read in the book of Moses how in the bush God spoke unto him saying," etc Does not Christ here plainly imply and teach the fact of God holding verbal communication with man? This, I think is unmistakable inspiration " But the lecturer asserts such a theory is utterly untenable," and with satire worthy of a better cause puts it as "God dictating to shorthand reporters, and saying to others 'Come up here I have something to tell you,' and writing it or having them do it under his direction," thus denying and making the butt of his ridicule the sacred source of the Christian's knowledge of God and of his hope in the future He would extinguish the luminarys that through the long vista of preceding ages cast their radiance around the Messiah that the people of earlier times might behold him in their sacrifice, and that his cotemporaries and succeeding generations might recognize him as the son of God and savior of our [illegible]

In making another quotation from the scriptures Christ again stamps it as inspired saying. For David himself said by the holy ghost the Lord said unto my Lord, etc And when [illegible] with the two disciples journeying [illegible] said, 'O fools and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and to enter into his glory? and beginning at Moses and all the prophets he expounded unto them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself "And he said unto them these are the words that I spake unto you while I was yet with you that all things must be fulfilled which were written in the law of Moses and in the prophets and in the Psalms concerning me Thus it is written and thus it behooves Christ to suffer I could multiply instances where Christ has borne testimony to the divine inspiration and authenticity of the sacred writings. In fact his discourses are largely composed of quotations from the scriptures pointing out the fulfillment of prophecy and attesting the authenticity of the whole But the lecturer says if it was a doctrine of inspiration he would cut it out by the roots and would quash a man if he were to preach it if he held to it with so much as a [illegible] finger. And as a tragic finale, he tells us that "evolution has run over it as a locomotive over a [illegible] etc

Now, I ask, has Mr Beecher here given us a representation of the sentiments of Christ as expressed on this point? Is he speaking as he says "from the heart of the Christ that came down from above?" &c. I think that the man's understanding must be badly "evolutionized" who would answer in the affirmative. After reviewing his lecture these high-sounding professions of christianity fall on the ear with a hollow mockery and we are reminded of the "whited sepulchre" No wonder Christ claims 'Why call ye me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?' He has reiterated again and again that all the scriptures must be fulfilled There is no getting around that And no man can be a christian, believe in Christ and reject this doctrine of inspiration Without it how could we have accepted him as the son of God at all except by [illegible] revelation? It is the passport on which Christ has entered our world and the medium of his introduction to us. If he had come unannounced and without the certificate of inspiration he would have had few followers In whatever else christians may disagree there must be unanimity on this point Christ has been too explicit about it to admit of dissension. He has also called our attention to the accounts of Noah and the flood, of the destruction of Sodom and Lot's wife, of Jonah and the city of Nineveh &c These are supernatural events, which, although held in derision by many of the Beecher class, are nevertheless facts attested by Christ and must be received as such by his followers, among whom I hope to be found.

A CHRISTIAN BELIEVER.

ONE MORE OPINION.

STARK'S POINT, W T Aug 31.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

If you can find space in your paper for one more opinion will you please publish the following which I clip from an eastern paper? It refers to a lecture delivered by Mr Beecher some time last winter and I think it is still applicable

EVOLUTION OR DEVOLUTION—WHICH?

In his recent lecture in Chicago Mr Beecher took positive positions in favor of evolution but he is decidedly behind the times in espousing such a cause at this late date

The greatest [illegible] now living find no confirmation of the theory of evolution in the Silurian systems The ablest botanist in Europe, who was also a friend of Darwin's, after the most exhaustive researches, declares that the flora of the world gives no evidence of the influence of environment. And the greatest anthropologist of the century, hitherto known as an evolutionist, now states that every fresh discovery places man's derivation from the lower animals farther from probability. Herbert Spencer is inclined to credit what he terms "ultimate religious truth"

In order to keep up with the latest phases of modern science, a man must be comparatively young in years, and attend strictly to the signs of the times and the theories of the age. It is unsafe to write a lecture upon the scientific questions of modern times, and lay it aside to cool while the writer makes his toilet and gets ready to start on his lecturing tour, for the lightnings get ahead of him, and the telegraphic wires whisper half a dozen new phases of the question, from [illegible] before the old gentleman gets ready to evolve his ideas on a given theme

The most plausible theory just now is that of devolution or the exact opposite of evolution—viz if there is any relationship between man and the lower animals, it is on the principle of degeneracy—the races of man uncultivated and indolent have during the lapse of ages, grown more and more degraded, until they have become wild races and finally were literally degenerated into the orang outang or baboon, and from thence as much lower as you please.

Here is a theory which appeals to our judgment and also to our experience, for mental improvement means hard work and lots of it, while mental degeneracy is the easiest thing in the world, and the natural laziness of humanity is the only material required

Intellectual superiority is only gained by self-sacrifice, close thought and earnest labor It is always nobly won, for there is no royal road to its possession, but unfortunately it is not transmissible to posterity—it is a quality that doesn't "evolute." We have got to learn the alphabet our forefathers learned, and mental training begins now just where it did a thousand years ago The child of intellectual parents usually learns easier than those of less fortunate parentage but he has the same road to travel and the same labor to perform He must work as his sire wrought if he would attain the same degree of excellence

When evolution was young, it was seized upon with great avidity by a class of men who thought this an opportunity to get rid of God and crowd the Creator out of his universe. But they must soon find that it requires more faith to believe in a process requiring a miracle at every step, than it does to believe in a single creative act. Any man of reason can see that the care of an omnipotent being is more essential to the transition stages of evolution than to a primary creation—for a single mistake among the atoms and tadpoles, during the millions of years, would be fatal to the result.

Finding that it takes more faith in miracles, and more trust in the power of God, to evolve man from a lower animal than to make him "upright," the intelligent sceptic will be only too glad to drop a sword which cuts sharper in the handle than in the blade.

It is a well known fact that some of great men seldom or never equal their fathers, and this one stubborn fact in the world's history is fatal to the theory of evolution. The present generation of Beechers may be intellectually superior to their parents but we venture to predict that their children will be decidedly inferior to them and will probably not equal their parents in intellectual ability

This fact does not agree with the 'survival of the fittest' nor the survival of the most intelligent It simply agrees with the truth It is natural for water to run down hill and just as natural for mankind as it is for water It is only effort earnest and prolonged, that wins its way against the current Hence we never find brutes developing into men but we see men everywhere degenerating into brutes It is vastly easier for a man to make a fool of himself than it is for a fool to make a man of himself

When science drops a theory as untenable—when the people weary of its vagaries and scepticism get ready to throw it overboard as an injury to the cause, Mr Beecher may as well fall into line and let evolution roll back where it belongs, in company with the doctrine of the transmigration of souls

ELIZABETH A REED

The Change in Italy

There is no corner of the Venetian provinces where it is not asserted that the rural population, is no longer contented to live as it formerly lived A close examination of this change shows that the new habits appear in the out-of-door life of the people in that part of their life which is turned toward the outer world rather than within the walls of their own dwellings or in the satisfaction of the first necessities of nature Many peasants eat nothing but polenta and what is worse polenta made of damaged corn and dwell in habitations of the worst possible description who nevertheless, show a tendency to clothe themselves in better clothing Here and there some old man who has not been persuaded to leave off wearing knee breeches becomes a laughing stock The nuptial bed is no longer formed of planks and trestles but has become a bedstead of walnut wood at the least The deal box that contained all the belongings of the bride has turned into a polished press. The material advantages enjoyed by the laboring classes have been increased But on the other hand, the aspirations and desires of the rural population have also greatly increased Exigencies and desires which a few years ago were unknown in agricultural districts now make themselves urgently felt and create new needs to be satisfied It is true that the Alpine populations of the regions furthest away from the great centers ordinarily preserve their ancient habits of sobriety and abnegation —Signor Morpurgo

AN AGNOSTIC SPEAKS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE OREGONIAN

Since Mr Beecher's lecture on 'Evolution and Revolution I observe that he has been the object of many criticisms, all from the standpoint of the theologians These critics seem to differ quite widely in their opinions of the lecturer and his subject, from the East Portland clergyman who stands up stoutly for the literal agreement of Genesis and geology and scores Mr Beecher both for his theology and morality to the clergyman on the retired list who reveres Mr Beecher accepts evolution as God's method in creation but refuses to acknowledge a grandfather who lived in the trees instead of under them

The most of the argument—where any is used—is how to make the theory of evolution coincide with the writer's ideas of God's design in creation and in the destiny of the human race and to a thoughtful student it seems strange that persons drawing their creeds from the same book and also making that book their guide in investigation should differ so widely on this subject, unless we conclude that the book is no guide in the matter and its dogmas should be ignored in the controversy

As a matter of fact there is a constantly increasing number of thinkers who like Mr Beecher do not look upon evolution as a demonstrated system but as a good working theory of creation explaining the operations of the material universe with fewest difficulties, but who are disposed to criticise him for what they deem very illogical conclusions from quite rational premises. Examine for a moment the salient points of the two extremes of this subject

Christian Theology—About six thousand years ago God created the first man Adam nearly or quite perfect, with all his surroundings conducive to peace and happiness but he sinned and thereby brought all his posterity into condemnation To make their salvation possible God came on earth as the son born of a woman through whose suffering and death sinners may be saved to a life eternal of happiness and glory

Evolution of the Scientists—The eternity of matter the correlation of forces the first forms of life a simple nature and from there the more complex evolved in accordance with natural laws the first men rude savages and myriads of years required to bring the race to its present comparatively high estate

Christian Evolution—Special creation of a few simple forms of life, then scientific evolution to the commencement of the Christian era and a sort of cross between evolution and theology from that time on indefinitely It would be proper to style this Beecherism were it not for the fact that he but gives expression to the views of thousands of others obliged to accept evolution as the most rational working theory of creation, but not yet able to accept its logical conclusions

The true scientist a constantly questioning nature to find out her operations and never asks how will this newly discovered fact agree with such a cherished belief? but 'is it a fact?' leaving the belief to take care of itself

The men who have given a life time to investigation and comparison of the phenomena of nature regardless of upholding any particular belief have almost without exception come to the conclusion so forcibly announced by Professor Tyndall in his Belfast address 'Abandoning all disguise the confession that I feel bound to make before you is that I prolong the vision backward across the boundary of the experimental evidence and discern in that matter which we, in our ignorance and notwithstanding our professed reverence for its creator have covered with opprobrium the promise and potency of every form of life

Viewed from this standpoint, Mr Beecher is more of a conservative than radical, and his fellow clergymen would perhaps do well to think twice before repudiating him for they are likely soon to require just his line of argument to sustain a necessary compromise for a time with the growing claims of scientific investigators At least this is the way it looks to an

EXCERPTS.

It would in our judgment be a national misfortune if the school system should ever pass under control of the national government The schools of a state are essentially its own institutions, to be managed by its own people and regulated in accordance with its own necessities —New York World.

So long as we continue to turn out an artificial coin artificial means for holding on to the gold we have and which forms the only safe currency must be devised We can not afford to lose gold but we do not think we shall require any more from abroad at present as there is little to create a demand for it here —New York Herald

The country is healthful and laborers are well employed The cause of the decline in prices is over-speculation in stocks and commodities and it is hardly liable to extend beyond those whose business is gambling, Such men have their ups and downs and it matters little whether they gamble with ivory chips or with stocks and grain —Chicago News

The foreigners who undertake to embarrass us by land purchase onto into a very large contract These dangerous attacks on our liberties must be going on in the territories, if anywhere but the perspiration is breaking out on the foreheads of the country savers at Coney Island These mush-brained reformers usually work at very long range —St. Louis Globe Democrat.

There can be no business prosperity without confidence There can be no confidence without faith and no faith without mutual honesty It is beyond the possibility of denial that one of the greatest elements of the distrust that is now slaughtering values on the New York stock exchange is the well founded lack of faith in the existence of the integrity on which these exchange values must rest —Chicago Tribune

The present act of congress (the civil service law) cannot, like its predecessors be nullified by mere failure to make an appropriation for its support If it could the democratic house of representatives would starve it to death The only way to get rid of it is by direct repeal and public sentiment would not tolerate that. Any party rash enough to attempt it would be sure to go to the wall at the very next election —Chicago Inter Ocean

Of infinitely higher importance is it to this nation or to any nation that every alien who comes to reside in it should become a land owner than it is that he should take out naturalization papers In stead of prohibiting aliens from becoming land owners until they have become citizens by a form of naturalization, a policy of infinitely higher wisdom would be to withhold from them the form of naturalization until they have become land owners —Chicago Times

Stage Devils.

Edinburgh Review

The most racy and effective parts in the popular eye of the early period were perhaps those of the stage demons to whom the utmost license, both of costume and antics, appears to have been conceded and whose presence was felt only on the stage but in various practical jokes on one another or the audience In an older mystery a stage direction bids them 'clatter their cauldrons and stewpans' One may suppose how the hair of the audience would stand on end at the sound, and may conjecture what a very different set of nerves it would tickle now Stage demons with horns and scaly tails used to appear within living memory in the last scene of Don Giovanni as ministers of retribution, but have lately been dropped in order to keep the ridiculous at a respectful distance As reliefs to the public mind from the overstrain of these terrors, comedy and farce found their fitting place and flourished as reagents to the terror and pity of the Passion Play

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

THURSDAY Sept 6.

General trade may be called very good although at this time it shows signs of being broken into by the anticipated holidays of next week During the past seven days we have not been without topics that while directly not interfering yet have had quite a bearing upon trade The stranding of a steamer and loss of nearly 1200 tons of her cargo the arrival of a vessel from China with a large part of her cargo damaged together with minor happenings and almost entire lack of any business in wheat has tended to present a situation seldom experienced Many small lines of produce are in scant supply and values have been forced up through this and other causes Next Monday will be a part holiday while Tuesday will be entirely given up to the festivities This presents an excellent opportunity for interior traders to visit the city and we doubt not but many will avail themselves of the opportunity

PRODUCE RECEIPTS—Past 24 hours 200 ctls wheat 300 bbls flour, 8 0 lbs wool 1081 lbs hides 59 bxs eggs 141 bxs fruit 1 bxs butter Also 76 ctls wheat 159 bbls flour 24 sxs potatoes 1220 lbs hides 13 bxs eggs 925 lbs hams from the eastern section

Receipts for past seven days have been 94 3 ctls wheat, 3375 bbls of flour 175 ctls oats 407 ctls bran 232 ctls millstuff 65 024 lbs wool 20 300 lbs hides 79 bxs butter, 289 bxs eggs 856 bxs fruit 28 sks potatoes 80 bls hay 920 lbs hops 2 676 bbls lime.

FREIGHTS—Market is quite weak although owners will not acknowledge the situation by accepting less Business is at a complete standstill and nearly that one that have recently been pending are now said to be off Notwithstanding present appearances there are many that firmly believe a better turn is not far off and owners decline to do anything owing to this An opinion is put forward that recent disasters in this section will tend to increase insurance rates and prevent shipping coming here No fears need be entertained on this point as we have been placed in the same position before without particular loss Tonnage owners and marine insurance co not usually take an unwarranted view of such matters and certainly these accidents are by no means due to an unsafe entrance, but to causes that at past very seldom
